Apologies are extended to any whose name or dates are incorrect. The author would like to know of any such errors.

RELATIONSHIPS

As a result of inter-marriages nearly all individuals descended from the families shown on charts 1, 2, and 3 can claim to be "cousins" to one another. First cousins have a common grandparent; second cousins have a common great-grandparent; and so on.

If two cousins do not have the same number of generations back to the common ancestor then they are first (or second, etc.) cousins "once removed" (if they are one generation apart); "twice removed" if two generations apart; and so forth.

Individuals who marry into the family are not strictly classed as cousins since there is no blood connection.

THE NOTES

An asterisk (*) after a name indicates there is a brief biographical note in the section after the charts. Except for a few instances, these notes are restricted to past members of the family. Furthermore the notes are not intended to fully reflect noteworthy aspects of an individual's life but rather items that may be of particular interest to the present families.

THE INDEX

All names on the charts are listed alphabetically with the corresponding chart number and column (a, b, c, etc., from left to right). The year of birth is given to distinguish those with the same name. Wives are listed under their maiden name.
